You climb past the strange steel poles, and you're in. Oddly, despite being a work-day morning, there don't seem to be many workmen about. You slink past a half-finished shop-front for a fashion store, bare plastic dummies standing together conspiratorially in one corner.

Suddenly you hear a scuffed footstep behind you – someone's seen you! Without turning to see who it is, you duck into the shop, dodging the building debris on the floor, and reach a back room. Stacked on the table there are six piles of plastic toy blocks. You know you have seen these before! Checking the camera once more, you feel you are very close to finding Carol.
