

A.5 Headless Snake

Puzzle by: Steven Irgang
Difficulty: Hard

cisra Puzzle Competition 2009
<http://puzzle.cisra.com.au>

Something which is as good as or better.

An object with abundant identical copies.

Denial of all responsibility and showing no regret.

Seminal knowledge about pairings of signs.

To occur or transpire at a particular time.

To press one row of teeth into a big object.

A state of having just as much as expected and needed, although about to get more.

To overcome a third of your trials.

Having a distinct sense of satisfaction.

A type of cable over which, historically, physical messages were passed by hand.

An inevitable addition of noise to measurements that were previously very accurate.

An event which will be substantially unexpected and unprepared for.

Having a canonical written form, with an unambiguous answer for how to write it.

Something which can simply be ignored.

Allow a group to continue to be considered angelic in nature.

